NAFTA 2.0 GLOBALISM REBRANDED

'The proposed USMCA has been widely portrayed as a replacement for NAFTA, which supposedly will no longer exist.

Yet an honest look at the new agreement shows that what will no longer exist is the highly unpopular NAFTA name.

In fact, not only does the USMCA retain sovereignty-diminishing provisions found in NAFTA, but it actually strengthens and expands them.'

-Christian Gomez, 10-1-18

'The USMCA looks to be the trade pact formerly known as NAFTA plus 10-20%. Hope it becomes a precedent for TPP. I suggest the US-Pacific Trade Agreement (USPTA). What matters is that the US joins it; doing so would bolster our strategic position vis-a-vis China and our economy.'

-Richard Haas (president of the C.F.R.), 10-1-18

"[From] some of the reads I got over night, two-thirds of this agreement is essentially going back to TPP...All they did was take so much of the language of TPP and implement it here, as it pertains to Canada."

-Bruce Heyman (former U.S. Ambassador to Canada), 10-1-18

'[NAFTA] will represent the most creative step toward a new world order taken by any group of countries since the end of the Cold War, and the first step toward the even larger vision of a free-trade zone for the entire Western Hemisphere.'

-Henry Kissinger, 7-18-93

EDITOR'S NOTE:

There will be no 'new world order' until Satan and his angels are cast to earth at the woe of the fifth trumpet at the beginning of the five month long hour of temptation. Only then does the one world political system written of in Revelation 13 come into being which then receives a 'deadly wound' after which Satan appears as the false christ and it becomes a one world religious system at the woe of the sixth trumpet. The True Christ will not return until immediately after the five month long hour of temptation at the woe of the seventh trumpet.

MERKEL WARNS TRUMP AGAINST 'DESTROYING' THE UNITED NATIONS

NEWSWEEK
10-1-18

(EXCERPT)

German Chancellor Angela Merkel took aim at President Donald Trump on Sunday, warning against his isolationist policies and oppositional stance toward the United Nations.

Speaking at a regional election event in the German state of Bavaria, Merkel said that Trump was trying to dismantle the international organization without offering an alternative.

"I believe that destroying something without having developed something new is extremely dangerous," the chancellor said, Agence France-Presse reported.

'A prolonged phase of gradually expanding cooperation with key Eurasian partners, both stimulated and arbitrated by America, can also help to foster the preconditions for an eventual upgrading of the existing and increasingly antiquated UN structures. A new distribution of responsibilities and privileges can then take into account the changed realities of global power, so drastically different from those of 1945.'

WITH NAFTA, U.S. FINALLY CREATES A NEW WORLD ORDER

(Yes, that's the actual title of the article)

By Henry Kissinger, 7-18-93, The Los Angeles Times

(EXCERPT) Before the end of summer, President Bill Clinton will ask Congress to approve the North American Free Trade Agreement, linking the United States with Canada and Mexico in a free-trade area comprising a population of 370 million and a gross national product of $6 trillion.

It will represent the most creative step toward a new world order taken by any group of countries since the end of the Cold War, and the first step toward the even larger vision of a free-trade zone for the entire Western Hemisphere.

And yet, recent polls show that barely half the American people have even heard of it.

This offers the President a real chance for leadership in educating the public to the opportunity before them. Since the end of the Cold War, fear of communism can no longer serve as the cement of international order. With the collapse of the ideological challenge, traditional patterns of nationalism have gained ground nearly everywhere.

The post-Cold War world has witnessed growing rivalries reminiscent of the tensions preceding World War I.

In this light, developments in the Western Hemisphere are crucial to global order. Here, a group of democratic nations has pledged itself to the Enterprise for the Americas initiative based on popular governments and market economies.

The revolution sweeping the Western Hemisphere points to an international order based on cooperation.

It is this revolution that is at stake in the ratification of NAFTA. What Congress will have before it is not a conventional trade agreement but the architecture of a new international system. Strong presidential leadership in the ratification battle is urgently required.

As the only nationally elected U.S. leader, Clinton is in the best position to put NAFTA into a broad strategic framework and explain why it serves the national interest. He must not permit the treaty's opponents to define NAFTA as a problem of economic arithmetic.

In this task, the President is entitled to bipartisan support. NAFTA's key provisions were concluded during the Bush Administration; its supplementary agreements are being negotiated in the Clinton Administration.

But NAFTA is so vital to prospects for global progress that it merits a demonstration of nonpartisan unity.

America has never had a neighbor of the importance Mexico will acquire in the next century - with or without NAFTA.

By then it will be a country with a population of more than 100 million and equal to the Asian "little tigers" such as Korea. Our de facto open borders make friendly relations a vital national interest. Twenty-million Mexican residents in the United States link the interests of the two nations on the human level.

The healthier Mexico's economy, the lower the illegal immigration and the greater U.S. exports will be to an economy whose propensity to import from us is the highest in the world.

Even on strictly economic grounds, NAFTA is to our long-range advantage.

It would be a disaster if U.S. actions encouraged the re-emergence of nationalistic candidates and reversed the trend toward cooperation between two neighbors. History will surely record the Enterprise Initiative for the Americas as one of the most important U.S. initiatives since the Marshall Plan.

The trade agreement with Mexico is the vital first step for a new kind of community of nations, built on a common base of democratic values, drawn together by the free exchange of goods, services and capital, dedicated to human rights and committed to the preservation of their common environment.

UPDATE:

The United States–Mexico–Canada Agreement (USMCA) is a pending free trade agreement between Canada, Mexico, and the United States.

It is also referred to as "NAFTA 2.0" in order to distinguish it from its intended current predecessor North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

It is the result of the 2017–2018 renegotiation of NAFTA by its member states, which informally agreed to the terms on September 30, 2018, and formally on October 1.

Final ratification and implementation is pending.

"...I'm here at a moment when the opportunity to build a constructive peaceful world order is very great."
